Section 4: The Harlem Renaissance (pages 452–457)

1. The NAACP used peaceful protest to fight against lynching. Marcus Garvey wanted to build a separate society for African Americans.
2. Possible responses: Langston Hughes was the most famous poet. He wove jazz and blues into his poems. Zora Neale Hurston collected folklore and wrote novels, stories, and poems.

Skillbuilder

1. Possible response: Popular musicians dressed formally in the 1920s. The fact that all the band members are African Americans may mean that the music industry was segregated.
2. Possible response: Popular bands today do not dress formally. Many modern bands are integrated.
